BETTER ORGANIZATION

Typically, fast-growing companies don't have the time to stop and define their processes and procedures – as a consequence, employees often do not know what needs to be done, when, and by whom. Implementation of ISO 27001 helps resolve such situations, because it encourages companies to write down their main processes (even those that are not security related), enabling them to reduce lost time by their employees and maintain critical organizational knowledge that could otherwise be lost when people leave the organization.
